The Pacific States Construction Company of San Francisco, which has a contract with the State Highway Commission for the surfacing of the State Highway between Berkeley and Redwood City, is constructing an asphalt plant at Belmont for the purpose of supplying the topsoil for the concrete roadbed between the two cities. The plant will cost about $16,000, the total contract price of the road work being $60,000.

The surfacing will be started shortly after the first of July, and will be completed in six weeks. DEATH OF FATAL CRASH HEARD AS DAMAGE SUIT FOR $11,725 IS FILED

A suit filed Monday in the Superior Court by Charles W. Haswell, attorney for Edward Gibson of 2590 Post street, San Francisco, is the aftermath of the fatal accident on the State Highway near the Holy Cross cemetery on May 11, 1921, when two men riding on a motorcycle, Elmer Mahlin and Robert Sellinger, both residents of San Bruno, receiving injuries resulting in death.

Gibson alleges in his complaint that he was driving south in a Ford car and that A. M. Trescony, the defendant in the suit, was driving a Marmon, who he carelessly and recklessly ran into the motorcycle while trying to pass, throwing the motorcycle against the Ford and causing Gibson to receive great and severe injuries, consisting of a broken wrist, fractured arm, broken fingers, dislocation of hand on forearm, cuts and bruises, which injuries he believes will be permanent.

He asks for $10,000 exemplary damages, $950 for loss of wages as a painter, $555 for medical services and $200 for damages to his automobile, together with costs of suit.

JUDGE BUCK UPHOLDS BY APPELLATE COURT

The appellate court has handed down a decision confirming the opinion of Judge Buck in the civil suit of Emma Hayward Rose and others against Henry Conlin and others. The lower court gave judgment to the plaintiff for some $21,000. The suit grew out of a claim against the Southern Pacific Company by the Alvin Hayward estate for an old right-of-way over the Hayward property at San Mateo. The claim was assigned to Conlin by the original owner who secured a judgment against the company. The Hayward estate claimed the award, the property having in the mean time reverted to it.

GUARDIANSHIP OF HANORA SULLIVAN ESTATE ASKED

A petition for appointment as guardian of the property and estate of Miss Hanora Sullivan, former resident of South San Francisco, was filed in the superior court Tuesday by Rev. Cornelius E. Kennedy of Redwood City through Attorney Jas. T. O'Keefe.

Miss Sullivan was recently arrested and charged with assault with a deadly weapon when she attempted to use a gun when her property was removed from a house at South San Francisco by Under Sheriff H. W. Lamplin and Deputy T. C. McGovern. She was afterwards examined as to her sanity and committed to Agnews and the assault charge dismissed.

The applicant recites in his petition that he is familiar with his property, which consists of stock in the Freeman's Fidelity Insurance Company and cash in San Francisco banks.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that said Board of Supervisors be petitioned to improve the portion of the Bay Shore Road leading from South San Francisco to San Francisco by widening and straightening the same in such a manner as to eliminate the dangerous curves therein.

Winter of San Francisco the old Hellman property back of Wolesley Park in the foothills. The place consists of 14 acres and was sold for $9,000. SENATOR M. B. JOHNSON LEAVES FOR EASTERN TRIP

Senator M. B. Johnson was here the fore part of the week bidding farewell to his friends prior to his departure on a business trip to the east. He left on Wednesday for Texas from which place he will continue his journey to Chicago. Mr. Johnson made an enviable record in the last legislature for the enactment of constructive legislation.

FINE PROGRAM IS RENDERED

A large audience filled the Sequoia Theatre Thursday afternoon when the Convent of Notre Dame, connected with the parish of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel, held its closing exercises.

The entire program was presented in most finished and enjoyable manner. The choruses were remarkable for the fullness of tone and correctness of pitch. The vocal solos were rendered in pleasing manner and the instrumental numbers were very acceptable.

Special notice must be given to the finished piano playing of Miss Inez Jamieson. The technique, musical memory and expression displayed by this young lady in the rendition of the difficult piece she so splendidly performed indicates a wonderful future for her.

The feature of the program was the morality play, "Evermild," in which the leading character is shown the emptiness of vanity and the joy and satisfaction of loyalty to duty. The leading part was carried most delightfully by Miss Marie Haurat, who, in addition to a remarkable memory, showed an intimate appreciation of the ideas of the author and interpreted them most acceptably.

Miss Florence Perry and Miss Rachael Graham likewise are specially deserving of mention for the excellent rendition of their parts.

The Reverend James P. Moran of South San Francisco delivered the address to the graduates. He dwelt at length upon the importance of religion upon true education, and in a very happy manner congratulated all who had a share in the success of the afternoon's program.

GEORGE V. BOLLINGER, FORMERLY A SHERIFF, PASSES AT THE AGE 64, NEAR THIS CITY

George V. Bollinger, aged 64, for many years a San Jose resident, and prominent valley rancher and Santa Clara county sheriff for two years, beginning with the fall of 1892, died suddenly at the Sweeney ranch near Redwood City, which he had farmed for a number of years, last Saturday afternoon. Death came shortly after Mr. Bollinger had returned to the ranch residence after an inspection of the hay field where work was progressing.

The remains were at once sent to the family residence at San Jose. Mr. Bollinger is survived by his widow, Mrs. Bollinger, whom he married 44 years ago and a sister, Mrs. Lyman Barre, residing on the Stevens Creek road, Santa Clara county.

Returning to the ranch house Saturday afternoon, Bollinger remarked that he was not feeling well. He was helped from his car, which he had driven from San Jose earlier in the day, into the house and made comfortable. The end came before the folks of the house could return to the room after going into another room to procure medical relief. Death claimed Mr. Bollinger approximately within four miles of his birthplace.

Mr. Bollinger was a member of the Native Sons and was as well liked by a wide circle of friends as he was prominent as a rancher of extensive interests.

Mr. Bollinger became widely known during his term as sheriff through his act of breaking up a local situation, which was part of a general railroad strike, in June 1894, when he headed a posse of 70, went to the San Jose railroad yards, broke the strike and drove the first engine, carrying fruit, to leave San Jose for ten days. With the aid of two or three other leaders he cleared up the situation and prevented fruit growers of the valley from having additional losses. The strike came in sympathy with eastern railroad men and for about ten days paralyzed railroad traffic on the coast. Coming as it did in fruit season, growers sustained heavy losses. Bollinger's leadership and daring prevented complete ruin of the crop.

A farmer before entering office as sheriff, he retired to farm life following his two-year term and since that time directed his time and energy to caring for numerous ranch holdings. He was known as a great lover of high grade cattle and racing stock and at one time maintained a stable there. During 1884 and '87

THE WEEK'S EVENTS IN LOCAL CIRCLES

A number of boys who wrecked the U. S. mail boxes on the Woodside road recently were up before the juvenile court this week and were given a severe lecture and let go after promising not to do such a trick again. This should serve as a lesson to other boys who are bent on similar mischief.

The sophomore class of the high school enjoyed a motor trip to Searsville lake Wednesday evening. The party arrived at the lake at 6 o'clock and remained until 11, enjoying a blazing camp fire and a barbecue which was prepared by the boys and girls of the party. The students were in charge of class director O. M. Carlington.

Peter Kelly, at one time jailer under the late J. H. Mansfield, but for many years connected with the police department of the Southern Pacific Company was one of the deputies that was with Roy Gardner, who robbed the U. S. mails recently at Sacramento, when he escaped at Oregon.

R. E. Reed of Bayard, Nebraska, has been appointed a teacher of mathematics in the South San Francisco high school. His mother resides in this city. His father was killed here in an accident at Five Points a year ago.

Mrs. Eleanor S. Fauer, who has an attractive home in Redwood Highlands, has been appointed a teacher in the Redwood City school department. She is a graduate of the San Francisco Normal school and has taught in the school department in San Francisco. For some time she has been connected with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

Miss Mabel Stoppeworth, also Goldie Holmes and Mrs. H. G. Stewart, all of San Jose, were treated last Sunday at the Quinivere Sanatorium for injuries received in an automobile accident on the highway.

After receiving medical assistance and the good care at the sanatorium the party was able to return to their homes.

Mrs. Lila Kirkpatrick left yesterday for Portland, Oregon, to spend the summer with friends and relatives. She usually spends the summer months in Portland, her former home for many years. Her attractive Main street home has been leased for two months by Mrs. Marvin and family of San Francisco.

Mrs. E. S. Conner, the charming owner of The Vogue Sewing Parlors, who was recently married in San Jose is at home to her friends at her home on Main street.

Miss Mildred M. Boyd, of Huntington Park, has been appointed a teacher in the local high school. She will teach in the commercial department and will also teach physical training. Miss Boyd is a graduate of the University of Southern California and has taught for five years. Miss Boyd is one of the new teachers to be added to the faculty.

Arthur Stevens was one of six applicants to successfully pass the examination in San Francisco for a chief marine engineer's license. He will go to sea again as soon as he returns from a motor trip to Los Angeles.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Congregational church, will hold a Food and Apron Sale, today at C. H. Woodmen's Furniture Store on Broadway, from 1 till 5 o'clock. Come early.

Lawrence A. Heiner and L. Otzen left early this morning for a week's outing in the high Sierras.

TEACHERS RESIGN

Mrs. Alice Gillogley and Miss Elizabeth MacDonnell, the pretty and efficient teachers of the Portola grammar school, have resigned. Mrs. Gillogley, who is a sister-in-law of Charles Lambert, the popular realty broker, will join her husband in Idaho, and Miss MacDonnell has secured a position in the school department of San Francisco. The vacancies have been filled by the appointment of Miss Haynes and Miss Hamilton, recent graduates of the State Normal School at San Jose.

NO COUNTY DEFENDER

People who are looking for the office of county defender in this county will be disappointed, as the act that was passed by the last legislature makes it necessary for the office to be filled by election. The place cannot be filled by appointment. No doubt there will be a number of the young lawyers in the county looking for the position at the next election. The place will pay a salary of $1800 a year.

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE'S FAMOUS IRISH ADDRESS

The Congressional Record dated April 25, containing the able speech of Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, on the proposed recognition of Ireland, was distributed in Redwood City during the week. It is a long address and we herewith publish a short extract:

Ireland a Nation.

The most absurd contention, put forward in opposition, is the denial that Ireland is a distant nationality.
Judged by the standards applied to other nations, the people of Ireland constitute one of the most distinctly marked and easily traced nationalities of which the world's history makes record. Upon this proposition I quote from a document as late as 1918. It was prepared by the British "Joint Commission on the Problems of the International Settlement," an association composed solely of English publications. They say:

"Ireland has all the attributes of a nation. Her boundaries can not be disputed. Her people from the earliest times have known the country by a single name and given it an undivided affection. Through long ages she has been famous for work and in gold and metal, in stone and parchment. Her written history, compiled by her learned scholars, is as old as that of England. She possesses an intelligent and splendid literature. The work of her unbroken roll of learned scholars and poets for over a thousand years has, during the last 300 years, been preserved by the devotion of her people, who in their darkest hour still labored in their cabins to keep and continue the manuscript tradition left them by their fathers. There is no other instance in Europe of a zeal such as this. The natural consciousness of the people, based on a great tradition, has never failed and is now of passionate intensity.

"The whole country was, from earliest times, known by a single name. First, which later took the form of Ireland. Its chroniclers began writing its history in the seventh century, and from at least as early as the eighth century a code of laws existed for the whole of Ireland.
National sentiment was inspired by love of the country itself, and its geography was part of the earliest literature. Schools of learning were so ordered as to be in fact a national university, and by their care the Irish language was guarded and perfected as the language of Ireland, one and indivisible. It is the early unity of all Ireland in its intellectual and spiritual life which reveals the soul of the country and which has given it from the first the fervor of national consciousness.

"What is known of the political life of the nation reveals a settled government, which commanded the affection of the people, and social conditions both humane and reasonable.
Communication with continental peoples was frequent, and Irish travelers—poets, missionaries, scholars, and traders—were found in every land. Woolen goods, leather work, fine embroideries, and other wares as far as known in Europe from Ireland were known in Russia.
Irish scholars, above all, had a great repute, especially as teachers, in foreign lands. Ireland lived no secluded life, but was in direct contact with the trade, the science, and the literature of Europe. The wealth of the country invited many invaders—Danes, Normans, and English.

"The invasion of Henry II. in 1169 broke the unity of the national life and the natural progress of civilization, culture, and government. Two contending forms of civilization were set against each other, one based on a political and imperial idea of a state, the other on the national and spiritual tradition of a country. The conflict thus begun has continued to the present day."

I have quoted somewhat at length on this proposition of nationhood because I think it has a worthy and special place in the struggle for which Ireland is contending.

Prime Minister Asquith, who was the responsible spokesman for England when that country entered the war, said of Ireland:

"There are few cases in history—as a student of history I myself know of none—of a nationhood at once so distant, so persistent, and so assimilative as the Irish."

And again he says:
"I have always maintained, and I maintain as strongly today, that Ireland is a nation. Not two nations, but one nation, and that the condition of the success of any scheme that statesmen can devise is the recognition, the full and generous recognition, of Irish nationality."

I believe the unqualified statement of the British premier will be accepted as a conclusive testimonial that Ireland is a nation, with all the rights that attach to nationhood.

If the nationhood of Ireland is accepted, then her right to order her own national life, to establish and maintain a government strictly according to the will of her own people, must be granted as hers—unless she has voluntarily surrendered that right.

That is inherent according to the American doctrine. I now take up the next object raised to Irish independence.

Irish Issue Political—Not Religious

It is said that this whole controversy arises from a religious issue.
If this is a religious struggle, let us account for the fact that, when before Martin Luther's time, when Ireland was Catholic and England was Catholic, Ireland fought English tyranny as bitterly as she is fighting it now? How may we explain the adherence to the Unionist cause of some of the leading Catholics of England?
And finally, during the last 150 years in time of national peril, when her life as a nation hung upon the loyalty of her leaders, why has Ireland chosen a majority of those leaders—Wolfe-Tone, Russell, McCracken, Orr, Robert Emmet, John Mitchell, Smith O'Brien, Parnell—every one of them from the ranks of the Protestants? It can not be maintained with truth that this struggle is being waged upon a religious issue.

It is a subterfuge, an attempt to so divert the real issue of this mighty struggle for independence, freedom, liberty, and self-government. Every impartial investigator and every commission which has inquired into conditions in Ireland has been forced to concede that the struggle now going on in that country is purely and simply a contest between Irish nationality and British imperialism.

FLICK 'EM UP

President Harding had the right idea when he went over to the Interstate Commerce Commission for a personal talk with the members concerning the railroad situation. One great trouble with the Commission has been its laggedness in action.
The Commission holds the cards that bind the railroads and has hardly lived up to what might reasonably have been expected of it in the last few years.

GRACE FORGEY WANTS DIVORCE Grace Forgey has brought an action in the superior court for an interlocutory decree of divorce from her husband, Harry J. Forgey, on the ground of wilful neglect. The couple was married in San Francisco on May 2, 1919. The plaintiff asks for alimony in the sum of $30 a month, attorney fees $60, costs and the custody of the minor child. Defendant earns $100 a month and board.

TO ADMINISTER FULLER ESTATE
The petition for letters of administration upon the estate of Elizabeth A. Fuller has been filed by C. M.
Doxsee, who makes the application.
The estate consists of real estate in the northern end of the county. The value of the estate will not exceed $10,000. Jas. T. O'Keefe is attorney for petitioner.

AT LAST

It took the republican party to put the "budge" in budget and at last we have the budget law. The democrats "usually" referred to it every four years. It reminded of it, but that is as far as they ever got.
Porkhunters henceforth will find the fat is shaved off still closer to the hind.

THE CACOPHONY OF THE KI-YI CHORUS

It will require a larger type of statesmanship than that possessed by a Pat Harrison, and a more truthful and trenchant style of editorializing than that displayed by the Washington Herald, to stultify the American Ambassador to Great Britain, Mr.
George Harvey. Much as they may wish to lash the shoulders of President Harding by aspersing the character and Americanism of the man selected by him to represent this nation at its most important diplomatic post, they will not get anywhere.

Since Mr. Harvey made his address at the Pilgrims' dinner in London there has developed considerable bitter partisan denunciation of him, led by such representatives of the democratic party and interna-tionalist press as the two mentioned.
The classical outpourings of the Senator from Mississippi were to be expected. He initiated them the day following Harvey's confirmation by the Senate. Harrison owes more to Mr. Wilson than Mr. Wilson owed to Harvey in the way of political success, and that is saying a great deal.
It was Senator Vardaman's refusal to follow Mr. Wilson in his league of national aberrations that induced the latter to throw his vast influence into the scale against the former and to coerce the coward party of Mississippi into electing Harrison to the Senate.
As for the Herald, it would be unfair to hold a member of the President's cabinet accountable for its rancorous condemnation of the man whom the President selected for the chief of diplomatic mission, since Mr. Hoover owns but a minor portion of the Herald's stock.

Since Mr. Harvey made his address, not a remark has been made by President Harding that these unconscionable critics have not attempted to compare the attitudes of the men to the detriment of the Ambassador.
It used to be a political maxim in this country that "politics ceased at the water's edge," but the Harrison and the Herald know not such decent limitations. Possibly, to their internationalist mentalities such boundaries are wiped out with the rest. Slinking from attack of a statesman who has a forum for his defense, they stand at a distance and hope that their yelps may be heard across the sea.

Announcing that "democrats, under the leadership of Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, are preparing to make further their attacks on George Harvey, ambassador to Great Britain," and that "they expect to have a sort of 'field day' for assaults on the colonel," the Washington Herald, in an article captioned "Harding Denies Selfish War Aim Stated by Harvey," seeks to lay a parallel in the Memorial Day address of the President and Mr. Harvey's Pilgrim dinner address, between the columns of which lies, we are assured, the reputation of the ambassador by the President. Speaking of the war, Mr.
Harding said: "In its beginnings, men fought to protect what they already had. Their countries and lives were at stake; their rights as free men were menaced and for these they went forth to battle. There was no thought of crusading for the freedom of further world, of emancipating distant peoples, of rendering a noble service to the enemy who had attacked them. They had no time and small disposition to indulge in altruism. Yet, they won far more than they had sought in the beginning." In his message to London he said: "They learned how great a responsibility they shared in the world, how greatly they might discharge it when serving in complete accord and in alliance with other peoples likewise devoted to human liberties and welfare."

Nothing in this runs counter to Harvey's speech. The alliance was a war alliance; the league alliance was repudiated by Harding. The soldiers of Charles Martel had no idea they were saving Christendom and the future course of history when they broke the Moslem power in the battle of Tours. They fought to save themselves, just as we fought to save ourselves, and what good came out of it was the gift of Providence for courage and devotion to the cause of free men. Furthermore, to put an end to the argument, it was announced two days after the Harvey speech that it had the approval of Harding and of Hughes.

COBB SWITCHES

The New York World publishes an article declaring that "ever since the armistice, the high money rate policy of the Federal Reserve System has been an important contributing factor to the demoralization of government bonds." What a difference it would have made if the "World" had been frank enough to say this during the campaign of 1920. The Federal Reserve System has been pointed to as one great achievement of the Wilson regime. The Reserve Board, although having some republicans in its organization, was absolutely under the control of democrats. The Board became the autocrat of American finance. The democratic candidate for President in 1920 was beaten by 7,660,000 plurality. If the World and other democratic papers had admitted during the campaign that the Federal Reserve System had been the chief contributing factor in the demoralization of the market for Liberty bonds, the plurality would have been so great as to make the election of Harding practically unanimous.
